Basketball is a sport that has been around for more than 100 years. Most of the basketball that the general public knows is the NBA, WNBA, FIBA, and NCAA professional and collegiate basketball leagues, respectively. These Leagues define basketball, and they have many records throughout their varied histories. These records each have a story of their own. They contain different characters and personalities that are worth documenting.

Data Description:

The data I want to store is multiple lists of different records for major basketball leagues around the world. I want each list to contain the different records for each league. The records I will be considering are recognized by each league. Each list item will contain the record name, record holder name, record holder picture previous record holder name, previous record holder picture, year broken, record total (i.e. 30,000 points), and source.
